RIGHT WAY TO SHIP PINES TO THE MAINLAND MARKET

Denver, December 11, 1905.

Editor Advertiser: I believe you will be good enough to give space to this letter which I hope may assist those who are not experienced in the shipping of fresh pineapples to the mainland markets, and who will be glad of any hint that will increase their profits. This business is growing rapidly and to those who ship "Smooth Cayenne" pines to the Coast which have been carefully handled, "cured" and packed, the returns will generally be very handsome and will be good even when the market has slumped to $1.50 per dozen for large fruit. I wish to call especial attention to curing the stems of the pines before shipment, which is an essential feature toward obtaining the best possible returns, and attention to which may at times prevent not only a partial but a total loss. Experience has taught me that for shipment to the Coast, the cut and bleeding stem of the pine must be properly "cured" or dried before one can be insured against a heavy loss by spoilage. I dare say that the heaviest losses have almost always been due to failure to recognize this point. In the experience of the Haiku Fruit & Packing Co. losses of 10 per cent due to failure to cure the stems have not been uncommon and at times owing to adverse conditions of weather, the percentage lost has been very high if not total. The trouble begins insidiously in the stem and in its early stages is often difficult to detect except by an experienced hand. From a quiet and unassuming beginning the spoiling travels upwards through the stem into the core of the pine, and once the spoiling reaches the core the fruit is as surely doomed as if it had the plague. From the core the spoiling spreads laterally through the fleshy part of the pine, and within a week it is reduced to a rotten mass of pulp, a total loss. The trouble appears to me to be due to a fermentation due to the action of the air on the moist and sugary sap at the cut end of the stem. At times a mold forms in connection with the fermentation and can be readily detected, but the mold is not always present to indicate the spoiling.

To "cure" the stem the open and bleeding pores must be effectually dried and closed so as to exclude air and moisture. This is best done by standing the pine upside down and exposing the stem to the sun. If it is rainy the curing can be accomplished under a roof of some sort where there is plenty of free ventilation, and in this case the fruit must be so arranged that the stems are uncovered and can be readily inspected at any time. Best results under cover are accomplished when there is a strong draft directly across the fruit. When the air is heavy and moist the curing is difficult and the stems should be inspected twice a day for the first signs of a discoloration that marks the beginning of the fermentation. If detected in time the trouble can be averted by cutting off the affected end of the stem, after which it stands as good a chance of being properly cured as originally. When the cut surface of the stem appears white and drawn and feels perfectly dry to the touch, it is "cured" and may be safely packed in the crate for shipment.

With a bright sunny day the curing is effected very readily and will often take place without any thought to it during the harvesting of the pines in the field, but in the case of damp or wet weather, it is not so easy and the fruit must be gathered 3 or 4 days ahead in order to allow sufficient time for proper curing.

Sincerely yours,
WM. A. BALDWIN,
Mgr. Haiku Fruit & Pkg. Co.

LET THEM TELL IT.

The Public Utterances of Honolulu Citizens Are What Count. Publicity is What the People Want. Let them tell it.

Let the public speak on the subject. It means better understanding. Means less misery in Honolulu. Means confidence in a good thing. Home endorsement counts. Easier to believe your neighbors Than strangers in a far-away town. Every box of Doan's Kidney Pills is backed by home testimony. Kidney disorders—urinary troubles—Are on the decrease here. Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are Relieving backs and curing citizens. It is their daily work. Here's a case in point.

Cyrus S. Edson of Kaplani Park, this city, says: "I am at present a teamster and came to the Islands fifteen years ago. Previous to that I drove a stage coach in the United States. These occupations necessitating my being out at all seasons were no doubt the cause of my kidney disorder. I had the ordinary symptoms of this complaint, and resorted to a host of things to cure it. All of them failed to do so, however, and when I had almost given up hope I heard about Doan's Backache Kidney Pills and got some at the Hollister Drug Co.'s store. They did indeed relieve me and I am quite satisfied with the benefit they have been to me."

Doan's Backache Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents per box (six boxes $2.50). Mailed by the Hollister Drug Co., Honolulu, wholesale agents for the Hawaiian Islands.
